

Dear Valued Customers,

We have been advised by Transnet that due to the severe storm that hit Durban on the 10th October much damage was caused to Durban MPT critical infrastructures, such as power supply and support to operating systems.

As such the terminal is not in a position to honor approved container booking requests to receive or dispatch containers from the terminal. Vessels that are currently working at the Terminal via operating systems (such as NAVIS) are also affected. A disaster management plan has been activated.

We would just like our customers to be aware of any potential delays and we will endeavor to update you should we become aware of such delays.

Many thanks in advance for your understanding and patience.

Kind regards,

Management

A container-laden ship was blown into Durban harbour's mouth by the storm on 10th October 2017.

Source: www.timeslive.co.za